Babyworld (Paperback)

By MR Jonathan Martin Dixit

Affentheater Inc., 2014. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .In 2067, the murder of a five-year-old girl leads a young lawyer to the despicable truth behind the creation of a race of chemically adulterated children. In the 1960s, politicians called children our most precious natural resource. Since the 80s, children have become commodities of the advertising industry. Do you ever wonder what role children will play in future society? BabyWorld is a crime mystery, soft sci-fi novel that explores the psychological dysfunction occurring in families suffering from suppressed trauma. With its taboo-breaking subject matter stylistically tempered into a near-future fairy tale, this coming-of-age story is written for a mature, literary audience. Toronto, September 2067. Ten percent of babies born are SMARTED; physically, emotionally and sexually they grow at normal rates, but cognitively they develop so fast that by six years old they graduate university and enter the heavily-taxed workforce, thus supporting Canada's high standard of living-the highest in an otherwise polluted, politically volatile and over-populated world. Sinika Reichman is a nine-and-a-half-year-old lawyer having problems determining whether she is a child or an adult. When the case of a raped and murdered, non-smarted,...
