According to many psychologists and mental health experts, happiness is a choice, and there are many ways to be happy. You can eliminate negative emotions such as jealousy, anger, pessimism and resentment, in addition to cultivating positive emotions like gratitude, serenity, compassion and empathy. However, to achieve happiness, optimum productivity and success, you also need to organize your life. One of the most important keys to happiness, success and consistency is to keep yourself organized. This principle applies to every aspect of your life from your home to your goals, your activities to your time, and your relationships to your finances. Most people have developed bad habits over time that eventually lead to a disorganized life. When you suffer from a disorganized life, your life becomes more stressful and toxic, and you start feeling unhappy. A disorganized life can also have negative effects on your mental health. In fact, a disorganized life may be a symptom of something serious like depression or an anxiety...
